NEGRO MAN CHARGED WITH SHOOTING BOYS DIES IN JAIL AT ELBA

Richard Turner, negro man about 65 years of age, died in the Coffee County jail at Elba Tuesday night. His body was carried to Troy Wednesday morning for burial by relatives. Turner it will be remembered was charged with having shot some white boys near New Brockton in November last year. According to reports of the affair the negro was driving down the road and met the boys. After he had passed one of the boys picked up a small stone and pitched it at the negro striking him on the shoulder, whereupon he seized his shotgun and fired on the boys.

After the shooting the negro abandoned his team and took to the woods. Several days after the occurrence the negro was seen on the streets of Troy by Mr. Sam Boswell, who knew him and also knew that he was a fugitive. Officers of Pike county were notified and he was placed under arrest, and later transferred to the jail here.

SMALL HOME ORCHARD IS FOUND PROFITABLE

That natural conditions in Alabama are favorable to fruit production is being demonstrated by Frank Rasch, a successful Lauderdale County farmer living on Florence, R. F. D. No. 3.

In telling his experience in fruit growing Mr. Rasch said that he had fruit trees on his farm for many years without recognizing their value. At the suggestion of his county agent he began pruning and spraying under his instructions five or six years ago, and since that time he has never had a complete failure, even though some crops have been larger than others.

Mr. Rasch has a small home orchard, including only 75 peach, apple, and pear trees, and a small grape vineyard, and his average sales per tree net him $5.00 annually. In addition a large amount of fresh, canned, dried, and preserved fruit is consumed in his home. Sales are made to Florence merchants who are well acquainted with the high quality fruit produced and put on the market by Mr. Rasch. Pruning spraying and cultivation are the three secrets of his success.

ON DAMAGED BY FIRE AT MORROW'S WAREHOUSE SUNDAY

About fifteen bales of cotton were badly damaged by fire on Sunday afternoon, on the platform of the Morrow warehouse in West Elba.

It is not known how the fire originated, but one presumption is that it was started by some small boys who were playing about the platform. Fortunately the fire was discovered soon after it was started, and the alarm turned in. On account of the bales which were burning being situated in the middle of the platform, quite a bit of cotton had to be moved before the flames could be reached, and by this time many others were ablaze.

On account of the current being off the electric fire alarm was not given, however a large crowd gathered before the flames were entirely extinguished.

The four potatoes which he left on our desk are unusually large ones, and will make all the pudding that we can eat in two or three days. Mr. Henderson has our thanks.

BOILER EXPLODES AT GREENVILLE; 3 DEAD AND 16 ARE INJURED

Greenville, Ala., Oct. 27.—Three dead and sixteen injured are the total casualties in a steam boiler explosion at the Hartley Gin Company's plant here today. The plant was completely demolished and a number of buildings in the vicinity were damaged.

The dead are John Snow, colored, fireman at the plant; Cephus Lierger, colored, railroad track man, and Oscar Zeigler, colored, an employee at the plant.

The wounded are Robert E. Jones, manager, John Dees, superintendent; Walker Reynolds, ginner, Cecil Eeds, helper, all white, Sam McMillan, helper, and others. The injured are John Lambie, colored, fireman at the plant; John Marley, a farmer, seriously injured about the face; Fonville Hinson, expressman, slightly bruised from flying timbers; several others with injuries more or less serious whose names cannot be learned.

The worst damaged buildings are the new Louisville & Nashville passenger station, the Grenala hotel, W. T. Ray's residence, J. H. Johnson's Ford sales establishment. Other buildings damaged are the city cafe, J. M. McKenzie, & Co., Nick's Grocery, Boutwell's sales stand, the cafe, most of the damage to the plant, and the buildings is shattered plate glass fronts.

The cause of the explosion will never be known on account of the death of John Snow, who was fireman, but it is thought that it was caused by steam pumping water into the boiler after it had previously run low and become hot. Pieces of steel, timber and bricks were hurled high into the air with great force, falling over a radius of the boiler of about a mile. A smaller number of deaths and injuries seems to be almost a miracle, for the streets were well filled with Saturday shoppers.

Louisville & Nashville train No. 8, northbound, had left the station, which faces the gin, one minute previous to the catastrophe, which probably saved the lives of a number of passengers.

A mule hitched to a wagon and driven by Sam McMillan, was in front of the boiler when discharging a load of fuel when the crash came. After it was over the mule pulled him self out from under the debris, shook himself and trotted off unhurt. The driver was only slightly injured.

Every physician and surgeon in Greenville rushed to render aid to the injured, who were speedily carried to the Stables and Speer hospitals. The most seriously injured are Walker Reynolds, Cecil Eeds, and Mr. Marley.

Greenville, Ala., Oct. 27.—Up to a late hour tonight no other deaths have occurred as a result of the Hartley gin explosion. The condition of Walker Reynolds is very grave, and little hope is held for his recovery.

Cecil Dees, the young white man who was injured, is resting well and it cannot yet be determined whether his eye will be saved or not.

E. R. McElroy, proprietor of the Grenala hotel, states that only a part of his rooms are out of commission and that he has a sufficient number of rooms left to take care of his business until the damaged ones are repaired.

Greenville, Ala., Oct. 28.—When Walker Reynolds, helper here today, the death list in the Hartley gin boiler explosion was raised to a total of four, three colored men, helping died before Mr. Reynolds, and John Lamont, two other seriously injured white men, are considered more favorable today and their chances for recovery are almost sure. The total number injured was sixteen.

TO SPEND LARGE SUM FIGHTING HOOKWORM TWO DISTILLERS KILLED IN RAID

Montgomery, Ala., Oct. 29.—After an inspection of conditions in Alabama and the thoroughness with which the research work is being conducted, the International Health Board has decided to spend more than thirty-five thousand dollars in continuing the fight against hookworm, in connection with the Alabama State Board of Health.

This decision was reached following a lengthy conference of officials of the State Board of Health, and a study of charts prepared by the engineering department showing just how this work is being done in Alabama.

Representatives of the International Health Board, after a visit to the state last week and a study of the work being done by the State Board, declared that Alabama had the best organization of any state in the union for the conservation of the public health.

Especially complimentary were the visitors upon the close attention to detail in the efforts to control typhoid fever and malarial diseases. The charts and statistics on these two diseases were declared to be as thorough as it is possible to make such charts and figures.

ALABAMA POWER CONVERTING ALABAMA COAL INTO ELECTRICITY SAVES MANY INDUSTRIES

Electricity is energy. Like time, it passes without pause. Electricity cannot be manufactured and stored away for future use. It must be manufactured instantly, as required, whether one or a thousand turn on light and power. This necessitates plant capacity equal to the greatest demand, and constant watchfulness on the part of the men and women employees of the Power Company.

The surplus steam power which the Alabama Power Company has been, and is now able to send to the Carolina and Georgia industries, comes from the Company's four principal steam plants, and particularly from the Sheffield and Gorgas steam plants.

The Company is amply meeting all demands, supplying a 100% service at home and a maximum out-of-state load of 40,000 horse-power daily, despite the fact that Alabama's rivers are experiencing one of the longest droughts ever recorded in this section. This is made possible by the big steam plants being located at the mouths of Alabama coal mines.

As hydro developments now under construction are completed and the necessary steam reserve provided, Alabama grows in importance, not only as a producer of adequate and cheap power, but as the strong link in the chain of interconnected systems which serves as a means for conserving the State's natural resources and brings a revenue into the State that would otherwise be lost, thereby enriching Alabama and her sister States in like proportion.

It is the policy of Alabama Power Company to—

Serve Alabama First

then to dispose of surplus steam power wherever it may be needed.

When they had reached Cottage Hill on the way to the city, they met Busby, a young farmer, 28 years of age, living at Orchard, walking on the way to town and asked him if he wanted a lift. He climbed in the truck and accident happened soon afterwards on a slippery piece of road this side of Cottage Hill.

All of the men were brought to the city for medical treatment by a passing autoist, but Busby died on the way. He leaves a wife and three children.

Another axe murder in magic city

Birmingham, Ala., Nov. 5.—Birmingham police renewed their efforts today in an effort to solve the city's latest axe assault committed last night in a downtown alley when Jane Jackson, a young negro woman and W. T. Conway, 30, were victims. The woman died a few hours after the attack. Conway's life hangs in the balance with doctors giving little hope of his recovery.

The death of the woman brought the number of alley murders to seven, while fifteen deaths have been recorded as a result of axe assaults upon keepers of small shops and members of their families since the beginning of the "axe murder," wave. In addition to the deaths eighteen persons attacked have recovered from injuries received.

The assailant of the Jackson woman and Conway used an axe or hatchet, police assert, the victims being hacked by heavy blows.

Alabama spent last year $6,269,596 for education. Which sum includes all schools and money from all services applied to education under the State control. The State is getting a stride that will lessen illiteracy in the adults and prevent illiteracy in the children of the State in future. The State system may not be all it should be. Those in charge, however, are not to be faulted, but these obstacles can be changed at the will of the people.—Alabama Traveler.
